Allies Land 50,000 Troops In Norway

Battles Rage Unabated Near Key Defenses

Germans Reported to Have Taken Hamar and Possibly Elverum; First Allied Victories In Northern Norway Offset Nazi Advances.

BULLETIN

PARIS—(AP)—Premier Paul Reynaud told the senate foreign affairs committee today that France was looking toward a "Mediterranean entente" with Italy and Spain and has continued "a friendly exchange of views" with those two countries since the beginning of the war.

By STEN HEDMAN
(INS Staff Correspondent)

STOCKHOLM—Huge British and French reinforcements, totalling more than 50,000 men, were reported today to have been landed at Namsos, a Norwegian seaport about 100 miles north of Trondheim.

At the same time, dispatches from Norwegian border points indicated the Germans have captured the southeastern cities of Hamar, once known as Norway's "West Point," and possibly Elverum.

Fighting was reported raging unabated, however, just beyond both key Norwegian defense centers.

Information reaching Stockholm said the British and French reinforcements were landed during last night at Namsos, and at Laerdal and Molde. The latter ports are about 100 miles south of Trondheim.

As a result of these landings Swedish military experts believed the Allies were launching an immediate pincer move aimed at isolation of Trondheim by land and by sea.

Another salient of the northern Allied forces was expected to attempt flanking movements behind Narvik, whose vital port is bottled by British warships.

The French troops were said to be concentrating around Namsos.

The rumored capture of Hamar and Elverum by the Germans was believed to be a disastrous blow to the hard-fighting defenders who were reported to have established strong lines between both cities.

(Official Berlin sources said Hamar was captured, but expressed doubt as to the occupation of Elverum.)

First Victories.

Germany's advance in the southeast—accomplished by motorized and tank units in cooperation with aircraft—was offset somewhat by reports of the first Allied victories in clashes with German troops on northern Norwegian soil.

(Describing the clashes, the London Daily Mail said they occurred Friday about 30 miles east of Namsos. Small German detachments were easily driven back after suffering heavy losses in killed, wounded and prisoners.

(The retreating Germans were pushed toward Stenjar where they were cut off from the main German body located south of that town.

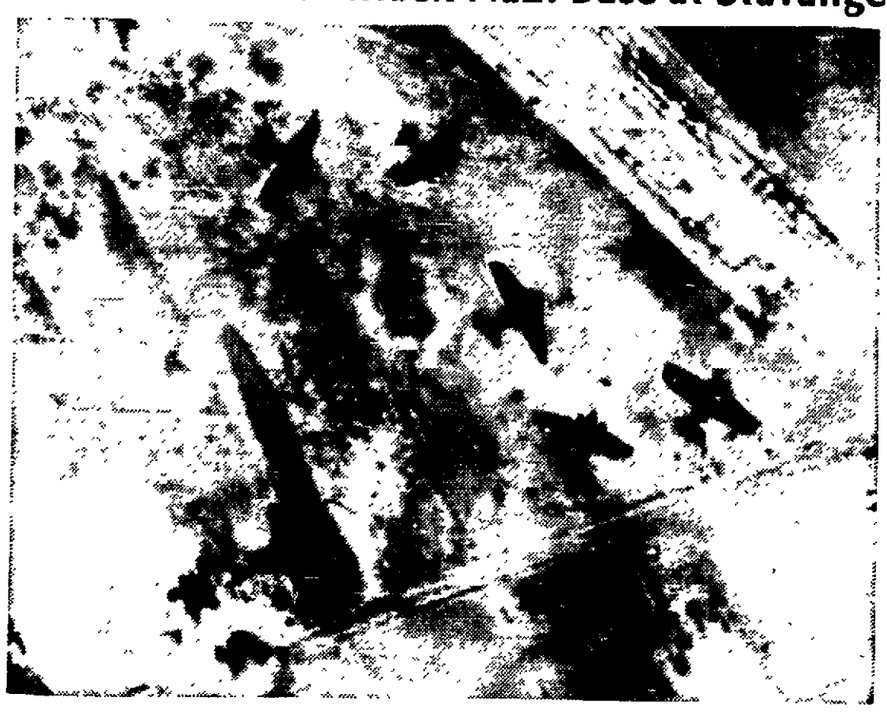
British Bombers Attack Nazi Base at Stavanger



Two bombs can be seen bursting, center and upper right, in this radiophoto of a British bombing attack on the German air base at Stavanger airport, Norway. The picture was taken from one of the raiding planes, according to the London censor. Allied bombers have made repeated assaults on the airport, which is the principal airdrome in Norway. The field also was subjected to a bombardment by British warships.

CLAIM FARMER HERE SET FIRE TO FOUR BARNS

State Charges Monroe Township Resident Collected $13,000 In Insurance Claims.

FACED LIE DETECTOR TEST

Accused Held to Grand Jury Under $2,500 Bond After Court Arraignment.

With state authorities claiming he had confessed firing four barns during the past 11 years to collect nearly $13,000 in insurance, a 57-year-old Monroe township farmer was held in the county jail today charged with arson.

Arraigned before Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in municipal court this morning, John W. McGugin, 57, of R. D. 1, Lucas, pleaded innocent and was bound over to the county grand jury under $2,500 bond.

The charges were filed by Gayle Owens, deputy state fire marshal, who took McGugin to Toledo yesterday for a lie detector test.

Under questioning, Owens said, McGugin confessed to setting fire to four barns on his properties during the past 11 years, the latest of which occured Jan 24. The other three took place during a two-year period while he lived in Knox county.

Collected $12,991.

Owens said McGugin had collected a total of $12,991.45 from the insurance companies since 1929.

According to the deputy, McGugin conceived the idea of firing barns to defraud the insurance companies several years ago when a lantern he had in a barn accidentally set the structure ablaze.

McGugin is alleged to have started all the fires by setting a lighted candle in a cardboard box and then covering the container with hay or straw.

Owens said he collected $6,048 in February 1929, $383 in February 1930; $2,343 in November 1930, all while he lived on a farm near Mt. Vernon, and $4,216 in January, when the barn on his 112-acre Richland county farm burned.

Express Leaps Rails, Piling Up Nine Cars

Westbound New York-Chicago Lake Shore Limited Hurtles Into Rock Bank at Little Falls, N. Y.; Difficulty Found In Identifying Dead.

(By Associated Press)

LITTLE FALLS, N. Y.—The New York-Chicago Lake Shore Limited, roaring westward along the Mohawk valley 15 minutes behind schedule, hurtled the rails shortly before midnight last night carrying at least 30 persons to death and leaving 100 injured.

With most of the 250 to 300 passengers asleep, nine cars of the 16-car New York Central fast express were turned in a flash into a mass of twisted steel as they were derailed on a wide curve and piled up for a half mile along the main east-west highway and the Albany-Buffalo barge canal.

Railroad men, investigating the New York Central's first passenger fatality in 13 years, voiced belief the train taking the curve at high speed sprung a rail.

The locomotive plunged across the highway into a rock embankment, tossing Fireman J. Y. Smith, Schenectady, N. Y., to instant death and pinning Engineer Jesse Earl, Albany, N. Y., in a battered cab where he died three hours later from loss of blood and two fractures.

The high-powered locomotive carried with it the tender and baggage car. One coach, uncoupled, sped down the tracks and apparently was not damaged. Another coach was cut open like a can of sardines, its top ripped off and the inside a complete wreck. A pullman came to rest on its right side. From each several bodies were removed.

Bodies Scattered.

The dead, the injured, car cushions, clothing and personal effects were strewn along the right of way. Feet of some of the victims protruded from the wreckage. Crumpled metal, ties and rails gave a junkyard appearance to the ghastly scene.

Survivors straggled back and forth looking for friends, relatives and luggage. There was no hysteria, no shrieks, no screams. Many persons grabbed blankets from the pullman berths and huddled in groups against the freezing temperature. Communication lines torn down by the plunging locomotive were entwined in the debris.

The scene of the wreck was in the foot of jutting hills, 60 miles west of Albany, and several hundred yards east of the highest lift-lock on the North American continent. Rugged,

New London Woman Chose Train, Injured

If Mrs. Hallie Van Vranken Ford, wife of R. B. Ford of New London, had chosen to use her airlines pass instead of her railroad pass, she would have escaped the train wreck today at Little Falls, N. Y.

Mrs. Ford, who was injured, but not seriously, in the wreck, decided to take the train when she learned that land travel would return her home quicker than by plane because of airline schedules. She had been visiting in New York City. She has passes for both air and rail travel because her daughter is employed by the American Airlines and her husband is a railroader.

County Creeks Hit Flood Stage; Ohio River Towns Menaced Again

Richland Streams Spill Over Banks as Inch of Rain Falls; Water Rushes Into Marietta; Scores Flee.

Winter's fury, undiminished despite the calendar arrival of spring a month ago, swept back into the Mansfield area today, bringing rain, sleet, snow, and wind, as bad a combination as the weatherman could have put together in January.

An inch of rain which fell yesterday and last night pushed Richland county streams out of their banks, but no damage to roads and homes had been reported this morning.

A week of intermittent rain in southern Ohio threatened another serious flood along the Ohio river and hundreds of families prepared to move to higher ground as the river passed flood stage. Scores of families in small southwest Ohio villages were forced to flee early today as the Little Miami river and its tributaries went on a rampage.

The rain changed to sleet and then to snow in Mansfield this morning as the temperature dropped to 33 degrees, one above freezing. Fair and slightly warmer weather was forecast for Sunday, but it was not expected to halt the rise of the Ohio river which will continue for several days.

The river's flood waters entered Marietta today, and by nightfall a foot of water was expected to spread over the city's business district. Business men, accustomed to floods, brought out their boarding to build a protective barrier around their stores.

Five Feet In Pomeroy.

Farther down the river, Pomeroy, almost annually flooded by the Ohio's waters, anticipated four or five feet of water in its business district by Sunday morning. Cincinnati prepared for a 52-foot flood stage by noon today. If the river goes higher than that, it will flood homes and the wharf district of the city and its Kentucky suburban districts.

HUNT 4 MEN

Cleveland Police Search for Theft Ring Members.

CLEVELAND — (UP) — Cleveland police today continued to search for four men named as members of a $500,000 tire theft ring after having arrested three others, including the confessed ringleader, Frank Hess, 53. Hess was being held under $2,500 bond on a suspicious person charge.

Detective Lieut. Charles Cavolo, head of the automobile bureau, said that police had recovered 25 additional stolen tires from shops in six northeastern Ohio cities.

The ring has preyed on northern Ohio motorists for the last seven years.

QUIZZED BY FBI

Pair Jailed Here After Auto Chase Questioned by Agent.

An officer from the Cleveland office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation was in Mansfield last night to question the two former Indiana state prison convicts, arrested near here Thursday after a 20-mile automobile chase over Richland county roads by a lone state highway patrolmen.

The pair who gave their names as Ray Taylor, 34, Niles, Mich., and Stephen Janas, 28, Burnham, Ill., were captured by State Highway Patrolman W. C. Smith and Deputy Sheriff J. R. Hetler, Thursday afternoon after a chase on county roads.

The men were questioned by the FBI agent concerning the theft of a car from Chicago and on their former police records, according to Smith.

Both men are in Richland county jail here under bonds of $5,000 each on charges of shooting with intent to kill.

FERGUSON QUITS ELECTION POST

Board Member 11 Years Given Job as Repairman In City Water Department.

William M. Ferguson, serving his eleventh year as Republican member of the Richland county board of election, had resigned today to accept the position of repairman in the municipal water department.

Mayor William J. Locke who disclosed the probationary appointment, under civil service rules after Ferguson had submitted his resignation to the election board, said Ferguson would be placed on an inside job in the water department testing meters.

Locke said Ferguson had been appointed to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Walter Hawk, a class B laborer who quit his job to accept a position with a contracting firm.

Ferguson, however, is listed on the payroll as a repairman and will receive a salary of $145 a month, Locke said. Hawk, employed on an hourly basis, had received 50 cents an hour.

In his resignation to the election board, Ferguson also submitted his resignation as a member of the G. O. P. county executive committee and withdrew his candidacy for central committee in Precinct A of the Fifth Ward.

The Republican executive committee will meet this afternoon to recommend to the secretary of state a candidate as Ferguson's successor on the election board.

NEW YORK (INS)—The Berlin correspondent of the Columbia Broadcasting system reported today that there is a rumor in the German capital that former Kaiser Wilhelm has returned to Germany from his long exile in Holland.

HIT VICTIM RUNS

LEXINGTON, Ky. —(AP)— Police are holding a man charged with hit-and-run driving but can't find the victim. BLAST KILLS 5

Explosion Rocks London Arms Factory, Injures 15.

LONDON—(AP)—Five men were killed and 15 injured in a munitions factory explosion in north London at 9:15 a. m. today.

The blast shook the entire neighborhood. One workman who was nearby said that the concussion was "terrific."

Plate glass windows were shattered as far as a mile away. One witness said he saw "a huge mass of gray smoke come up in the shape of a balloon with the end tapering over the factory."

On Jan 18 there were a series of explosions in the Royal Gunpowder factory at Waltham Abbey, 12 miles north of London, in which five men were killed and 30 persons injured. After a Scotland Yard investigation the government denied reports that sabotage was responsible.

OSLO, Norway — (AP) — General Von Falkenhorst, commander-in-chief of the German army of occupation, today commuted the death sentences of Norwegians doomed since the invasion as a birthday gift from Adolf Hitler.

SURVIVOR: Injured Passenger Tells Story of Train Disaster

EDITOR'S NOTE:—Caroll D. Wright, Watertown, N. Y., a passenger on the New York Central Railway train wrecked at Little Falls, N. Y., says in the following dispatch, dictated to the United Press in the hospital where he is recovering from injuries, that the train was running late at the time of the accident.

By CAROLL D. WRIGHT

LITTLE FALLS, N. Y.—I was in the small smoker, walking toward the mail car, the next car ahead, at the time of the wreck. My sensation, standing in the aisle, was of sailing through the air as the car lurched. I saw a porter ahead of me reaching for an emergency cord, and then lost consciousness.

When I came to I was lying in the Pullman section of the car, ahead of the smoking compartment. The car lay on its side. I was buried in cushions, which had softened my fall and saved me from more serious injury. A state trooper stood over me.

Missed Companion.

My first thought was of my traveling companion, Norman C. Hicks. I remember the trooper asking me if I was hurt. I was too dazed to reply, although I was fully conscious. As soon as I was able to talk, I asked if he would help me find Mr. Hicks.

The trooper helped me to my feet. I had trouble walking. I have several cuts on the thigh, a bruised hip and a back injury.

LUCKY: Baggage Man Rode on Past Wreck as Car Held Track

(By United Press)

LITTLE FALLS, N. Y.—A lucky man is A. A. Hill, who was in charge of the baggage car of the New York Central's Lake Shore Limited when it was wrecked last night.

His car, directly behind the engine, stayed on the track and ran on beyond the wreck. The engine exploded against the side of a cliff. The mail car behind the baggage car was smashed to bits.

Hill, who was hard at work at the time, preparing his cargoes for the stop at Utica 20 miles ahead, escaped without a scratch.

"It's a mystery to me how the baggage car stood up," he said.

"I didn't realize for a time what had happened. All I know was that there was a sudden jerk, an awful jerk as a matter of fact, the worst I ever knew. I got out the side door pretty soon and ran back and helped drag out the bodies and one thing and another."

Hill has been railroading for 40 years. He was one of the calmest persons at the scene. A state policeman walked up to him as he talked to a group of survivors and asked him if he had heard an explosion before the wreck.

"I certainly did not before the wreck, but I thought I heard one afterwards," he said.

The engine crew was killed and Hill was the only member of the train crew near the engine to survive.

Oberlin College Official Injured In Train Crash

LITTLE FALLS, N. Y.—(UP)—Dr. William Frederick Bohn, 63, assistant to the president of Oberlin college, told from his hospital bed in Little Falls today how he escaped death in the train wreck here during the night.

Dr. Bohn, who suffered a wrenched back and bruised chest, frequently rides the Lake Shore limited on trips to New York. He was in a lower berth when the accident occurred.

He said he was in one of the first cars and that it rolled over instead of telescoping.

"I was thrown out of my berth, and soon we could smell gas coming up from the batteries," he said. "Somebody broke a window and then another window was opened and people began crawling out."

Dr. Bohn lost his shoes and brief case and other luggage but grabbed his suit before climbing out of the wreckage.

He expected he would be able to return to Oberlin later today.

He has been associated with the college since 1903 and has held his present position since 1913.

7 Major Crimes Face Richland Grand Jury Being Drawn Today

The April term grand jury will face one of the heaviest dockets in the past year when it convenes for the first time Tuesday morning to indict at least 11 cases, seven of them of major importance.

Heading the list will be cases involving armed robbery charges against Vincent Carbeau, William Justine, and Rocco Cusato, accused of slugging and robbing Philip Schmutzler in a downtown street last week.

The jury will also examine charges of shooting with intent to kill against Stephen Janas and Ray Taylor, former Indiana state prison convicts, who were captured Thursday night after a 20-mile chase by State Highway Patrolman W. C. Smith and Deputy Sheriff J. R. Hetler.

Added to the docket today were cases against John McGugin, charged with arson, Harold Rolf, accused of second degree manslaughter, and Robert Harper, bound over on a charge of non-support.

The other cases the jury will consider involve three prisoners who have been in the county jail for several weeks. They are Betty Bland, held on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, Edward Corson, cited for grand larceny, and Henry Harry, accused of cutting with intent to wound.

Townsend Plan Backers Clamor for Vote In Congress

SIGNERS FOR PETITION IN HOUSE FOUND

Unexpected Rush to Support Plan Develops; Senators Reported Interested.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The Townsend old-age pension plan—nightmare to many members of congress in an election year—rose from the ashes of last year's crushing defeat as 133 members of the house today clamored for another vote.

Leaders in the fight for the Townsend plan, who resorted to the petition method of forcing the measure to the house floor, predicted that the necessary 218 signatures will be obtained within two weeks.

The proposal to force a vote on the plan, which is embodied in a bill by Rep. Hendricks (D) Fla., was not treated seriously at first by house leaders. An unexpected rush to sign the petition has developed however.

The Townsend plan was rejected by a vote of 302 to 97 in the house last session. The petition already has 36 more names than the number voting for the bill last session.

"I am sure that 218 members, a majority, will sign the petition and bring the bill to a vote this session," said Hendricks.

"There are many reasons for the apparent change in sentiment in favor of the bill. The bill has been changed. Many members who voted against the Townsend plan last year have found that their people are for it."

Otis Bouma, legislative representative for the Townsend plan, said that "really there is more intense interest in the senate right now than in the house."

Grave Diggers on Cleveland Strike Picket 4 Burials

CLEVELAND — (AP) — A strike of grave diggers and gardeners today delayed burials at historic Lake View cemetery, the resting place of such famous men as President James A. Garfield, John D. Rockefeller and Newton D. Baker.

The workers, organized in the Aborists, Landscapers and Nursery Workers Union (AFL), picketed the main gate and prevented four burials yesterday in seeking to enforce demands for higher wages.

Graves had been dug but truck drivers delivering burial vaults refused to go through the line of 20 pickets. Funeral processions entered the cemetery, however, and caskets were placed temporarily in receiving vaults.

John B. Dempsey, president of the Lake View Cemetery association, said the entire crew of 70 went on strike after the association refused to sign a new contract with the union providing increases of seven to 13 cents an hour. An agreement which expired April 1 provided a scale ranging from 56 to 72 cents.

"The present demands are so unreasonable that we have nothing to consider," Dempsey said. "We will continue placing caskets in receiving vaults until the strike is settled."

FINGERPRINTS TRAP FUGITIVE

O. S. R. Inmate Caught as He Applies for Lodging.

An Ohio State reformatory fugitive was held in a LaFayette, Ind., jail today, trapped by his fingerprints, taken when he applied for overnight lodging at the city jail.

Dispatches from Indiana identified the fugitive as Donald LaFortune, 25, who fled from the reformatory in 1935 while serving a 10 to 25 year sentence for a Lima robbery.

LaFortune was sentenced from Allen county Nov. 7, 1933. Reformatory officials said he had waived extradition and that guards would be dispatched to return him to the prison.

Even the purple martins, expert forecasters of spring, were fooled this time by the weatherman. The martins, which usually don't return from the south until the cold is definitely over, have been huddling around bird houses in Mansfield for nearly two weeks, probably wondering how they ever made a mistake like that.

J. F. O'Donnell, assistant to the sales manager of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, paid Mansfield a dollar compliment last night when he spoke at the Dale Carnegie class at the Leland hotel. He said: "Having lived in cities that were all much larger than Mansfield, including New York City, Paris, Washington and Rochester, I find that Mansfield offers most of the advantages and none of the disadvantages of the metropolitan centers. Mansfield is an ideal place in which to live." O'Donnell probably realizes that the weather isn't a local product and he'd get the same thing in any of the other places.

A seven-week-old baby today turned out to be the victim of a family argument which preceded the serving of breakfast in a north-side home. According to police reports, the child was hit on the head with a pancake turner a wife hurled at her husband. The kitchen weapon missed it's target and struck the child lying in its crib near the table. The baby was not seriously hurt.

SENDS 2 BOYS TO LANCASTER

Judge Paroles Four Others Linked to Youthful Gang Of Burglars.

Two of the six youthful Mansfield burglars who confessed the theft of property valued at about $200 in recent weeks, today had been sentenced to the Lancaster Boys' Industrial school by Judge C. J. Anderson in juvenile court, while another was ordered to Juvenile Research in Columbus, and three of them were paroled.

One of the 15-year-old boys sent to Lancaster was the leader of the gang of youthful robbers, Judge Anderson said. The boy had been cited a number of times in juvenile court for theft and truancy. The other youth who will go to the Industrial school also has a bad record, Judge Anderson said. He is 15.

One of the other boys will be returned to the Richland county children's home where he will be under strict disciplinary rules, Judge Anderson added.

Another was paroled to his Sunday school teacher and the other two to their parents.

The boys, ranging in age from 13 to 15, hid most of their loot in lockers at the Children's home where three of the youths were staying. When arrested three days ago by state highway patrolmen, four of the boys were armed with revolvers which they said were stolen from downtown stores. They also had several rounds of ammunition, small radios, tools, flashlights, cameras, clocks, and a black-jack.

ROOSEVELT'S SPEECH TONIGHT CARRIES POLITICAL INTEREST

(By Associated Press)

WARM SPRINGS, Ga.—Back in the familiar surroundings of the little White House and the Warm Springs infantile paralysis foundation, President Roosevelt concentrated his attention today on completing a potentially-significant political speech to be made to Young Democrats clubs tonight.

Aides say Mr. Roosevelt had no engagements for the first full day of his vacation here. The president was not even sure he would find time to take a dip in the foundation's pool.

But at 9:45 p. m. (CST) he is going on the air with his speech (via all networks).

Young Democrats assembled at dinners over the nation will hear it. Many a politician will be listening, too, for a possible clue to Mr. Roosevelt's intentions toward a third term or to whom the president prefers as his successor.

Some of those politicians recalled how the chief executive, in a message to a Young Democrats convention at Pittsburgh last August, demanded that the Democratic party nominate a liberal and threatened to withhold his support should the party select a conservative.

He declared then that his party would "fail if it goes conservative next year" or if its leadership were entrusted to "people who can offer naught but fine phrases."

President Roosevelt arrived from Washington last night and most of the 400 villagers turned out at the station to shout and wave a welcome as he walked down a ramp from his special train, entered a car and drove to the foundation.

The length of the president's stay here depended primarily on what happens in the European conflict. Before leaving the capital, Mr. Roosevelt said he would be "right back" if another country were invaded.

GIVEN $15,875

City Applies Liquor Revenue To General Fund Debt.

The city's general fund was boosted $15,875 today from liquor permit fees distributed by the state. It was applied to a $28,000 deficit and reduced the amount overdrawn from the general fund to $12,209.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelley said the distribution represented the first division of 1940 liquor license fees and was anticipated revenues earmarked for general operating purposes. Last year the city received approximately $2,000 from this source.

Kelley added that the general fund would be bolstered by about $20,000 from the April property tax settlement and an additional amount from the personal tax collection, but that he might have to seek an advance draft to cover the April 1 payroll for city departments.

PRESERVATIVE?

WICHITA, Kas. — (AP) — H. M. Williams lost his expensive fountain pen last August as he hauled in a big fish on Santa Fe lake. Finding the water had receded many feet this spring, he started digging. He recovered the pen undamaged and ready for use—without even refilling.

SCHOOL HEADS SAY CONTESTS UNNECESSARY

Declare Interest In Music Doesn't Need Stimulant Of Big Festivals.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—More than 10,000 high school students competed for honors in the annual two-day music festival at Ohio State university, but their principals decided that such contests were unnecessary in stimulating interest in music.

T. P. Swain, principal of Columbus North high school, reported that 95 per cent of the school officials contacted through a recent questionnaire believed music contests were of little value.

Most of the officials thought music contests should end with state championship events, while others believed district competition sufficient, Swain told the annual meeting of the Ohio High School Principals association yesterday.

C. J. W. Luttrell, Lorain principal, declared that most senior high school authorities favored limiting or banning post-season football games and confining the basketball season to not more than 15 games.

Cage Limits.

Luttrell reported that the sentiment was contained in answers from 59 large city schools, 19 in exempted village and consolidated districts, 10 junior highs, and four others. The replies also favored two to one banning basketball games preceding school days.

Vocal contestants appeared on the first day's program at the music festival, with instrumental events set for today.

Winners of "superior" rating in yesterday's events included:

Class C mixed chorus, Granville; class B mixed chorus, Shawnee Central and Wellston; class CC mixed chorus, Liverpool township; class A boys' chorus, Akron Garfield and Akron West; class BB mixed chorus, Ashtabula and Celina.

Class A mixed chorus, Bowling Green, Lima Central, Fostoria, Dover, and Columbus North; class AA mixed chorus, New Philadelphia and Bera; class A girls' chorus, Lima Central, Columbus North, Dayton Steele, and Portsmouth.

Class BB girls' chorus, Portsmouth Sciotoville, North Canton, and Celina; class G girls' chorus, Pandora; class BB boys' chorus, Youngstown and Scienceville; and class C boys' chorus, Pandora.

Not That It Matters

New Kind of Crusade for Boys and Girls Give Them Chance to Be 'Knights'

—By JANE WILLIAMS

THE WORD "Crusade" has lost much of its romance in recent years when it has come to mean anything from a lady with a hatchet breaking up a saloon to a drive against auto horns. But time was when it brought to mind the knights of King Arthur's Round Table and their gallant efforts to make the world a better place in which to live.

The word recalls, too, that knights in armor once set out on the most heroic and romantic of missions—to find the Holy Grail, the cup from which Christ drank at the Last Supper. The poet Lowell tells of one Sir Launfal who set out to find the Holy Grail, giving a lifetime and traveling the world over, and that he found it at last in the humble cup of water which he shared with a wayside beggar. Launfal found that the way to the Grail was to share what you have with another less fortunate.

And somehow, all of these romantic old stories are called to mind by the Children's Crusade For Children which opens Monday in the schools of America. No knights in shining armor, no lances atilt in the sun, no chargers in jeweled mantles in this crusade. But millions of American school children who will share their pennies with the sorrowful, homeless children of Europe and China.

CERTAINLY there are poverty-stricken children in America, but Sir Launfal himself was old and homeless, penniless and in rags when he shared his cup with the miserable wanderer, and thereby found the real meaning of the Grail and the brotherhood of man.

This much is certain: the most poverty-stricken child in America is infinitely better off than the war-desolated children of Europe. If a child cries on the streets of American cities or towns, someone is certain to stop and inquire the cause and alleviate his woe (even if the rascal is only staging an act for the price of a picture show), and goodness knows his governments cares enough to spend billions on his care and his schooling.

Boys and girls in America will be happier for their own generousity if they share their pennies during the Children's Crusade next week.

WHILE it seems impossible to get an accurate picture of does seem as if "Brittania Rules navian peninsula war, because of the varied reports and denials, it does seem as if "Britanica Rules The Waves"—as usual. It is quite possible that the German war lords had never heard this song, or didn't believe it.

They might a well accept the fact that fighting a war with the British navy is something entirely different from fighting with the Chamberlain umbrella government.

NOTES On The Cuff: The way Old Man Winter is fiddling around about his exit, you'd think he was considering running for a third term. . . . James H. K. Cromwell, United States Ambassador to Canada, adds prestige and dignity to his office by being best man at the wedding of George Jessel, 42, and Lois Andrews, 16, both of whom just adore publicity. . . .

The British are trying to keep the Nazis from taking the iron mines of Norway. And who can blame them? If the English Tommies must have their daily iron, they'd rather have it in spinach than in shells. . . . A census taker in Pennsylvania reports finding a man 120 years old. Didn't we tell you that information would never be kept secret? . . . William Faversham, the matinee pulse-quickener of a quarter of a century ago, who died the other day, played in Mansfield at the old Opera House in 1926. Interviewed him, but can't remember the name of the play. . . .

TWO men from the "higher brackets" of society were charged with felonies in Mansfield courts this week. One, a Cleveland man of responsible position, will have his case presented to the grand jury this next week, charged with "involuntary manslaughter" in which another man was killed in a head-on auto crash. The second man, of excellent family and background, will face a charge of armed robbery.

The second man, in a newspaper interview this week, said he didn't know why he did it "unless it was the lure of easy money." Both men have yet to be proved guilty, but it is safe to say that attorneys for each of them will point out the fact that each has been a good citizen, never has been in trouble and is not of the criminal type.

While good position and reputation certainly should mean something to a man when he is in trouble, they should not prove an alibi. On the contrary, it seems infinitely worse for any man of intelligence and background to take part in the commission of a crime than for a man who comes from society's rubbish pile.

Education and intelligence mean exactly nothing if they don't teach you how to adapt your way to the ways of society as a whole.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—It is customary for movie directors to discourse glibly on their current pictures as their personal "favorites," on characters therein as the most intriguing, most this, most that. When Jay Theodore Reed (plain Ted outside the credit titles) gets enthusiastic about Henry Aldrich, I make an exception and believe it's straight from the heart.

Here's why—a story Ted tells on the set where he's putting Jackie Cooper through another set of Henry Aldrich's tribulations.

Ted, who used to direct Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks in silent epics, is a father. One of his boys, Jim, is about Henry Aldrich's age.

One day, Ted was in his back yard, taking the earned leisure of a hardworking paterfamilias, when ominous sounds from the heavens caused him to look skyward. An airplane was diving low over his house, in tactics doubtless amusing to the pilot, but alarming to a home-owner. Again and again the machine roared down, zoomed up, circled around, dipping and saluting. Angrily, Ted was ready to call the sheriff when the performance was discontinued.

Some hours later, son Jim appeared, very cheery. "Well, dad," did you see me?"

"See you?" said puzzled Ted. Then light broke. "Were you with the insane guy in that plane?"

"No, dad. I was the guy," said Jim.

And then Ted Reed learned that son Jim had earned his pilot's license—when Ted hadn't known the boy ever had been up in a plane.

That, of course, has nothing to do with Henry Aldrich. Ted Reed wasn't talking about Henry Aldrich at the time. But you can put two and two together . . .

"I like Henry," said Ted, "because he's such a great character. He's a kid who tries hard, and that's where his troubles start. If he'd only sit down and relax, and quit trying, he'd never get into trouble. He's not a character who depends on situations to be interesting. We don't have to figure up situations to put him in. Just turn Henry loose, and right away he's in a situation—one that comes out of his own character."

Henry's adventures this time center about a desired vacation trip. The boy of "What a Life!" is "trying hard"; object to earn a trip to Alaska. There's a philanthropist in Chicago (Moroni Olsen) who cooperates with deserving boys toward this end, and Henry—but you know what happens when Henry Aldrich tries hard.

Two summers ago Don Hartman, the screen writer, was vacationing up in Canada, at Banff and Lake Louise. On the street, he was approached by a lad selling pencils. Hartman took out a nickel, obligingly, but the boy said "No, a quarter—this is an On-to-Alaska pencil."

Intrigued, Hartman learned there really was a gentleman (in Detroit) whose interest in Alaska and in youngsters promoted a plan to make Alaskan vacations possible for boys who would work for them.

Hartman filed the note away in memory, and when he and Clifford Goldsmith, playwright of "What a Life!" got together to concoct a sequel, there it was: Henry would work for an Alaskan vacation, and Henry, naturally, would get into trouble.

TEACHERS HOLD COUNTY DINNER FRIDAY NIGHT

Ashland County Association Hears U. of Michigan Youth Authority.

ASHLAND—Close to 160 county school teachers and their guests were in attendance here at the annual County School Teachers' association banquet, given at the Methodist Educational building last night.

The main speaker at the meeting was Dr. T. Luther Purdum of the guidance and placement department of the University of Michigan, who discussed the modern problem of juvenile delinquency and the need of the educational system to correct this deficiency.

We are spending nine times as much money on trying to correct criminals whom we are sending to institutions than we are spending on our school children, he declared, and unless we find a cure, we are going to have a social revolution, he said.

Gradually, in the next 25 years, we must help boys and girls find out their personal problems in life, and help to correct them, so that they will fit into our society, or our educational system is doomed, he said.

Our universities and colleges spend too much time on knowledge training, and too little on training children to meet their problems determining what is making them unhappy, why they do not have a good personality or why they do not fit into our society, he declared.

It is up to the local school teachers to take a step in helping the children solve these personal problems, he said, for they are closest to the source.

Dr. Purdum was introduced by County School Superintendent Virgil B. Moffett.

Preceding him Donald Mayer and Ralph Crumrine were presented as vocal soloists.

V. L. Raver was toastmaster. The invocation was given by H. H. Geiger.

Committees in charge included H. M. Wiggins, Arnold Carlson, Rodger Hiller, Frances Freer, Katharine Vaughn and Edith Bentz. Officers of the club include Raver, president, John Wohlgamuth, vice president, and Ethel Baum, secretary-treasurer.

HITLER GIVEN BIRTHDAY GIFT

drove up to the Fuehrer's office entrance.

The American flag was hoisted over the embassy. This was done after the dean of the diplomatic corps agreed it was the correct procedure on the occasion. Only the embassy of Soviet Russia abstained from hoisting its national emblem since it is traditional that the red flag of Moscow is shown only on Russian festive occasions.

After a recent examination, Hitler's personal physician was understood to have pronounced the Fuehrer in an exceptional state of health.

Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering called on the Nazi chancellor this morning and formally presented him with "a vast metal reserve sufficient to serve for the duration of the war and given as the German people's gift."

Th presentation marked the climax of a long campaign to collect all available scrap and precious metals from the people to help stave off the effects of the Allied blockade.

After talking with Goering, the chancellor received his military chiefs and took his usual walk in the chancellory garden where he fed the squirrels.

Hitler's appearance on the balcony climaxed tremendous nationwide celebrations. Berlin's streets were beflagged and congratulatory messages flooded the chancellory.

50,000 ALLIED TROOPS LANDED

Fighting Rages Unabated Near Norwegian Key Defenses; Nazis Take Hamar.

(British forces, according to the Mail, were reported advancing along the railroad approaches to Namsos toward Trondheim where a large German troop concentration has been moving north and south along the coast.

(Unconfirmed reports circulated by Reuters (British) News Agency from Stockholm said the Allied forces maneuvering on Trondheim consist of two British and one French division while the Germans in that city total only about 3,200 men.

(In view of the comparative weakness in numbers it was felt the Germans will fight entirely on the defensive and already are calling back scouting patrols to the city's inner ring defenses, although some Nazi northern patrols reportedly still are harrying the Allies in the Namsos area.

"Rats In Trap."

(Germans in the Narvik area, according to Reuters, are being caught like rats in a trap with their food running short. The The British control the entire surrounding area and the entrance into Narvik fjord, it was said.)

The Hamar radio was silenced yesterday afternoon. The town of Rena, a strategically important point between the Swedish border and Hamar, was reported bombed.

Advance of the German troops in that secor was said to be so rapid that one Norwegian ambulance was forced to flee three times with its field hospital during the past day or two.

(A London Daily Express dispatch from Stockholm said the Norwegians have flung up barricades six feet high along roads around Elverum. The German forces driving against the defenders there were said to number between 800 and 1,200 mechanized troops.)

rocky cliffs line the roadbed.

State Police Lieutenant John Ronan said 28 bodies were recovered in addition to those of the engineer and fireman.

Identification of the victims was made difficult because most of them were in sleeping attire. Their clothing and luggage, only clues to identity, were lost in the wreckage. In addition, many of the bodies were so badly mangled identification was virtually impossible.

Hospitals Jammed.

Hospitals in the area were jammed with the injured and ambulances and physicians rushed to the scene from miles around. Cots were placed along the highway and the four-track line for those less seriously hurt.

Railroad men of the line, which received the Harriman award last year for passenger safety record, were inclined to discount a theory the locomotive exploded.

Hyman Blitz, 48, Toledo, O., said he was in bed "when all of a sudden we heard a tremendous crash and felt the car topple over."

"I pulled a friend of mine out of the wreck," he related. "His ear had been cut off. We heard lots of screaming. It happened so suddenly we didn't know what happened."

Bridget Lo Guadice, Utica, N. Y., said several persons "knelt in the aisles of the coach and prayed."

T. H. Jones, West Englewood, N. J., said he had just fallen asleep when the wreck occurred.

"The next thing I knew," he added, "the upper berth crashed down on me and pinned me close. I managed to extricate myself but there were many passengers who were lying about in the cars."

Harold Kunzer, Chicago, Ill., declared "it felt as though the rails were splitting."

"There was a terrific crash and the lights went out," he said. "I was thrown forward, dazed and bruised. A porter and I helped shove a woman through a window and crawled out ourselves. Then we returned and took out some more passengers."

The one section train of 15 cars left New York City at 6:50 p. m. last night. It was composed of 13 Pullmans, a baggage car and coach.

The line's New York City office said in a statement that regulations call for operation of trains around the curve at 45 miles per hour and that the speedometer tape taken from the wrecked locomotive indicated the train was doing 59 miles per hour.

It was a six degree curve, the sharpest on the Central system, the office said. The last accident there was 40 years ago.

C. H. Hoffman, chief dispatcher of the Central's Albany division, said the actual cause of the accident would not be known "for some time" pending a study "of all angles concerned."

Giles Brown, 22, a Little Falls garage mechanic who aided in the rescue work, told of groping his way through a battered car to find a woman with her dying husband in her arms.

"We had to force her to leave him and lift her out of the car," he said. "It was hell. The inside of these cars could not have been worse than if a hurricane struck them. There was blood all over and people were screaming and moaning. The steel of the cars was wrapped around some of the bodies."

RELATES STORY OF RAIL WRECK

Dazed Passenger Felt Like He Was Sailing Through Air As Car Left Rails.

Apparently I had been thrown out of the smoking compartment when my car went off the rails. It was a strange sensation, finding myself in another part of the car and not knowing how I got there.

There were several other injured persons in the car and I could faintly hear some of them calling for help, although the sound of escaping steam from the engine drowned out almost all other noises.

I scarcely remember getting out of the car, with the trooper's help. Thinking back now over the few minutes preceding the wreck, I would say the train was late. I had planned to get off at Utica, 20 miles farther on, and I remember that the train was due there at 11:28 p. m. The accident happened about 11:35 p. m., as I recall.

It is plain now, that I was very close to death. The car through which I was walking was the third on the train, and a few steps one way or another might have been the end of me. The baggage car, next to the engine, miraculously escaped damage, but the main car and the Pullman car behind it, toward which I was walking were smashed to bits. In a few seconds I would have been in that car.

A physician who examined me at the scene of the wreck suggested that I come to the hospital here. I did so, and was among the first to arrive. I soon had to give up my bed as a stream of more seriously injured began coming in. I still don't know what happened to Mr. Hicks.

by the swollen Hocking river and the spring meeting of the Ohio Typographical conference was called off because delegates were unable to get into the city. The flood prevented the Athens high school band from going to Columbus for the state band contest. Several delegates expected to attend the Typo conference from Mansfield.

Glouster, north of Athens, also was hit hard by flood waters, and there was four feet of water in the city's principal hotel as Sunday creek spread over a wide area.

Two hundred families in the Athens-Nelsonville area abandoned lowland homes as the Hocking river kept rising. Todd's Fork, a driblet stream ordinarily, forced 13 families to flee at Clarksville and Anderson Fork and Caesar creeks routed 21 families at New Burlington.

Six hundred were homeless in Morrow and South Lebanon. The army rushed 50 cots and supplies from Patterson field, Dayton, to Morrow where refugees were quartered in a school house.

South Newark had 400 homeless as the Licking river covered all but two roads leading into Newark. A foot of water flowed through the business district of Bremen, Fairfield county.

More than two inches of rain fell over the Ohio Valley watershed during the last 24 hours.

Rainfall over much of central and southern Ohio has exceeded four inches during the month's first 20 days. The entire month's normal precipitation is only slightly more than two inches.

The drowning reported was that of four-year-old Bernard Wood of Buck, Summers, county, West Virginia, who tumbled into Wolf creek.

If the rainfall over the watersheds is not great today, weather forecaster William S. Brotzban predicted the rivers would crest in Pittsburgh by midnight around 28 feet—three feet above flood stage. This depends upon conditions up the Allegheny where rain was still falling at some points. Received two inches of rain while the Monongahela watershed had about an inch.

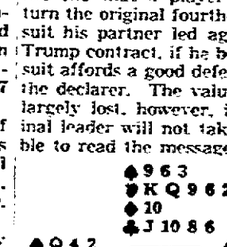
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

RETURNING THE SUIT

Sound conventions of defensive play are those which convey valuable meanings from one player to his partner without sacrificing any of the trick-taking value of the cards used. Such a convention is the one that a player should return the original fourth-best of the suit his partner led against a No Trump contract, if he believes that suit affords a good defense against the declarer. The value of this is largely lost, however, if the original leader will not take the trouble to read the messages involved.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
3 NT

West obviously disliked leading a heart into that rebid suit, so selected his diamond 5. South let the trick go to the J, and East returned the diamond 7. Deciding now that a hold-up would do no good because he figured each defender for four diamonds, South took the second trick with the A. Lacking dummy entries, he laid down the two high spades and led a third to West. The latter cashed the diamond K, and realized he had blocked the suit. He could get a fourth trick, in hearts, but still wanted to set the contract. So he led away from his heart A, tempting declarer to win it in dummy and then try a club finesse. The heart trick was won in dummy, but then South saw through the ruse. He played two high clubs to drop the queen and succeeded, giving them a lucky game.

If West had counted East's return of the diamond 7 as his original fourth-best, he would have known East had the remaining two higher ones out, the Q and 9, and so should have played his diamond K under declarer's A. Had he done so, the contract could have been set surely, no matter what South did.

Your Week-End Lesson.

Suppose the bidding has been:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♥	1 ♠
3 ♥	3 ♠	4 ♥	4 ♠

What would you, as South, bid now, holding either of the hands below, with (1) neither side vulnerable, (2) North-South vulnerable, (3) East-West vulnerable, (4) both sides vulnerable?

(Answers Monday.)

A. ♠7 2 ♥K 8 6 4 ♦A 6 5 3 ♣9 7 4

B. ♠A ♥K 8 6 4 ♦A 6 5 3 ♣Q J 10 2

KOERBER'S PILSENER

● Anybody can make a beer—few can make a good beer. You don't "luck" quality; you plan it and pay for it... And Koerber's Pilsener has quality.

MALT is a sprouting grain of varying grades... its taste alone is generally sweet...

HOPS are the cones of the hop vines which gives to good beer its sharp, tingly taste...

SO... both must be blended by men who know... from materials... which are the best. Then you have the quality we call RIGHT... dominant in our Pilsener.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, APRIL 20 1940.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and be on the lookout for reckless and drunken drivers on the highways.

An Arkansas newspaper asks: "Are the people of this nation becoming plain, ordinary panhandlers—beggars from government?"—and then pauses for reply.

Now that they've had time to analyze it, some fans are complaining that in his no-hit opening game Bob Feller walked five men—but he'll probably improve as the season goes along.

Waging War Against Cancer

DETERMINATION such as has extended through a number of years in the fight against tuberculosis, with steady reduction in the death rate from this disease, is now being carried into a battle against another of mankind's deadly enemies—cancer.

April has been chosen as the month for a concentration of efforts to acquaint more people with the rapid advance strides science has made in the treatment of cancer cases and to carry the tidings throughout the nation that "Early cancer is curable."

While the death rates from some other diseases have been much reduced in recent years, as a result of medical progress, the cancer rate has shown an upward trend during the past quarter century and since 1936 the Women's Field Army of the American Society for the Control of Cancer has been building up its forces for a more aggressive campaign against this destroyer.

Advancement of the movement is believed certain to bring noteworthy accomplishments within another decade as results bring hope and encouragement to many thousands of people who have heretofore regarded cancer as incurable, even in its early stages.

Awakening of greater public interest in this subject, and a spread of the slogan, "Early cancer is curable; fight it with knowledge," is a tribute to the effectiveness of the field army's work.

Elections In Mexico Also

THIS is a political year in Mexico, too, and south of the border elections are often more exciting than our own. The Mexican presidential election is scheduled for Sunday, July 7. The votes will be counted by the new congress which will meet September 1.

The incoming president takes the oath of office in the afternoon of November 30, and that would seem to be the logical time for the outgoing president to find himself out of office. Oddly enough, however, his term of office expires on December 1. Therefore, from the afternoon of the last day of November until one minute after midnight, Mexico actually has two presidents.

That would be an embarrassing situation even in a country where all the political fighting ends on election day. In a land where bullets have, in the past, too frequently supplemented ballots, it could be much worse than embarrassing. No wonder most retiring presidents of Mexico hurry out of the country, if they can.

Bank Service Intended for All

MANY persons seem to think of banking as the representative of "big business," and say that it exists primarily to serve large interests and wealthy people.

No criticism could have less justification. There are some 45,000,000 savings depositors, and the average deposit is less than $600. More than 90 per cent of all savings accounts are insured in full by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, which means that they are accounts of $5,000 or less. The services of banking are therefore primarily for the people of small and moderate means.

In the field of bank loans, a similar situation obtains. There are some 169,000 manufacturing plants in this country, plus 177,000 wholesalers, 1,700,000 independent retailers, 29,000 hotels, etc. It is obvious that relatively few of these businesses are "large" in any sense of the word. They are small and middle-sized—and they are involved in the great bulk of banking transactions.

If banking existed just to serve big business, there would be few banks—there aren't enough big businesses to keep America's 15,000 banks going.

Words That Conceal Thoughts

A SPECIAL committee of psychologists has investigated the radio panic of October 1938, created by Orson Welles when he broadcast too realistically a fantastic story by H. G. Wells. The learned probers discovered that the program had about six million listeners, one million of whom were deceived and frightened out of their wits by the purely fictitious invasion from Mars.

Naturally, the investigators have produced a book dealing, in some detail, with all their discoveries. And they arrived at conclusions which Ralph Thompson, book reviewer for the New York Times, boils down to this: "The less gullible listeners were not taken in, and those taken in were the more gullible." The authors, however, do not state their findings so clearly. The book will never reach so many people as the broadcast, because it is full of such language as the following:

"Classificatory rubrics," "motivational causes," "enormous felt ego-involvement," "subsumptive power," "personalistic dimensions," "stimulus-configurations," and "highly consistent structuration of the external stimulus world."

Which sounds like a bunch of highbrow rubbish and encourages an impression that, for practical purposes, too much "education" may be worse than not enough.

Plowing Better Than Burning

NEARLY 27,000 acres of timberland have been destroyed by fires in southern Illinois this spring, the state conservation department reports. Most of the fires were attributed to the burning over of fields for spring plowing.

The field-burning may be doing double harm. In addition to the timber endangered, it destroys valuable humus and nitrogen needed in the soil. It has been found by careful experiments that oat yields may be 7.5 bushels per acre more on land where cornstalks have been plowed under than on burned-off fields.

On the moisture side, too, there is much in favor of plowing the stalks in. The organic matter contained in them decays slowly in the soil, keeping it in good condition.

The old idea that stalks must be burned to control the corn borer is not considered sound. Deep plowing which covers the stalks destroys the borer just as effectively and accomplishes other benefits.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The highest paid woman in radio—if you are interested in mundane information—is Kate Smith of Broadway and Lake Placid, who conducts an hour's broadcast one evening each week and a 15-minute chat at noon five days every week.

It is believed her current three-year contract calls for more than $3,000,000.

This is the contract with the famous "war" clause. It is so drawn up that it can not be broken unless the U. S. becomes engaged in a war for a period in excess of five years.

If you go up to 1820 Broadway and ride the elevator to the top you will find a door with the word "Kated" in black, square letters on the door. Miss Smith's manager and representative is Ted Collins. Kate and Ted have incorporated. They own shows together, they make investments together. It is said there is no contract between them.

THEY own part of an island in Lake Placid on which are five buildings, two boat houses and a number of speed boats. There Kate Smith spends her summers, swimming and aquaplaning.

On May 1, Kate Smith will be 31 years old. It was just nine years ago, on her birthday, that she began her broadcasting career. Previous to this she was merely a lonesome girl, not very happy, singing in a Broadway show and working with comedians whose jokes annoyed and distressed her. Collins heard her sing and came around to see her. He wanted to interest her in making a number of recordings for a phonograph company. Thus began their partnership.

In many ways Miss Smith's career borders on the phenomenal, because she is the only woman in the entire history of radio who is given sole sway over a full hour's entertainment. No other woman ever reached as many people as she has, and no other woman ever made as much money.

AND yet, with all her success and with all the material comforts her earnings have brought her, my guess is that even now Kate Smith's life is, well less than joyous. No one has said or even intimated such a thing to me. I base this on a scrutiny of mazagines and papers through the last eight or nine years, and on years of listening to Broadway conversations which to my knowledge, have included every celebrity I ever heard of—except Kate Smith.

Not once have I seen her in a theater or a nightclub. Miss Smith is not an easy person to see. But once you are past the lions at the door, she is a wholesome, hearty, even gusty talker. Her voice booms with enthusiasm, and she will discuss fishing or basketball or anything else you may care to bring up. Right now the thing that interests her most is getting back to that island in Lake Placid.

Ohio Anecdotes

Alexander Doyle, Sculptor.

ALEXANDER DOYLE, famous sculptor and Steubenville native, offered his services free when his hometown decided to erect a statue in honor of a fellow-native, Edwin M. Stanton, President Lincoln's secretary of war.

Bronze statues of Horace Greely, given to New York City in 1890; a bronze of General Steedman in Toledo, and a marble statue of Gen. James A. Farfield in Cleveland, stand today as reminders of Doyle's art.

His grandfather, Basil Doyle, was one of Steubenville's first settlers, having moved from Maryland during the Revolution. George Doyle, Alexander's father, engaged in quarrying and making monuments, and no doubt influenced Alexander to turn to sculpture. He was trained abroad, especially in Italy, in music, art and painting.

THE CARVER'S ASSISTANT

Has Republic Been Overthrown?

By GUS W. DYER

Professor of Economics and Sociology, Vanderbilt University.

THE "New Deal" is new only to those who are ignorant of the history of government. It is simply a reversion to a type of government that was discredited as a failure by the founders of our government.

The New Deal is a return to the type of government represented by the "democracies" of the past. The founders of the American Republic fully comprehended the deadly weakness of "democracies." "Democracies," says James Madison, the author of our Constitution, "have ever been spectacles of turbulence and contention, have ever been found incompatible with personal security or the rights of property, and have in general been as short in their lives as they have been violent in their deaths."

A republic, by which I mean a government in which the scheme of representation takes place, opens a different prospect, and promises the cure for which we are seeking. One constitutional system, the work of Madison's hands, is the type of republic he had in mind.

A democracy is a government directed by the unrestrained will of the majority. Constitutional restraints are abhorred and repudiated by all radicals. In a democracy the rights of minorities are ignored, for the will of the majority is supreme in all things.

Intelligence, character, and patriotism count for nothing in determining the policies of the government. These policies are determined by the majority of the heads counted at the polls, and in making this computation the head of a "pig" or the head of a "goose" has the same value as the head of a statesman or an intelligent patriot. The methods used in obtaining this majority voice, that is all powerful are not to be considered as material. The fact that this majority may be bought with the taxpayers' money in no way mitigates against its supreme authority.

The overthrow of the American Republic, as established under our constitutional system, and a return to the ideals of the democracies that were discredited and repudiated as failures by the founders of our government have, apparently, constituted the one great objective of the New Deal.

The purpose of the attempt to pack the Supreme Court was to destroy the power of the Supreme Court and the authority of the Constitution to restrain the will of the majority from doing anything the leaders wanted done. In large measure the Administration has destroyed the Republic (temporarily we trust) and reached its objective. It is this that has created the chaos in which we find ourselves wandering today.

Lord Macaulay, the English historian, writing over eighty years ago, it would seem, foresaw the repudiation of the republic by the New Deal. "Institutions purely democratic must sooner or later destroy liberty or civilization or both. Under a government directed by the will of the crowd, things will be done," says Macaulay, "that will prevent prosperity from returning . . . there will be spoilation, the spoilation will increase the distress, the distress will produce fresh spoilation. There is nothing to stop you—your Constitution is all sail and no anchor. When a society (democracy) has entered on this downward progress either civilization or liberty must perish."

The paramount issue before the American people is, shall we return to the republic of the Constitution and live and grow and become invincible or shall we join with the radical democracies and eventually take our place with the civilizations that passed out?

Listen, World!

You Can Stop Worrying.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

DO I WORRY? Of course I worry. Who doesn't? Worry is as natural as breathing.

Worry was not only natural but necessary when man first skulked in caves, with a thousand violent deaths sniffing and prowling outside his den. Worry made man barricade that den, made him watch his step and avoid shadows. Primitive man wouldn't have lasted long if he hadn't worried plenty.

So worry became woven into the pattern of man thought, into the fabric of man flesh.

Worry was good medicine in 19,000 B. C. Worry is bad medicine in 1940 A. D. Worry safeguarded primitive life. Worry both muddles and wastes modern life. You can neither protect yourself nor profit by modern life if you give way to worry. Worry must be stopped—but how?

Worry can't be stopped by saying it's unnatural, for it isn't, or by saying there's no reason to fear, for there is.

A MAN CAN CHOOSE NOT TO WORRY.

Consider your own anxious self, Man. You can say:

"Yes, I'm filled with the makings of fear. That's a hangover from my savage days. In just the same way, I'm filled with the makings of murder and theft and other forms of savage, stupid violence.

"And there are definite reasons for fear—just as definite reasons for fear today as there were 50,000 years ago.

"BUT I HAVE SOMETHING TODAY THAT PEOPLE DIDN'T HAVE 50,000 YEARS AGO. I HAVE THE POWER OF CHOICE IN ME: THE POWER TO WEIGH AND JUDGE EXPERIENCES, TO DECIDE AND CONTROL MY OWN ACTIONS.

"I can, and I should, realize the dangers of modern life; but I can also realize the advantages and safeguards of modern life.

"FOR EVERY REASON WHICH I HAVE TO BE AFRAID I HAVE ALSO A REASON TO BE SURE: AND I CAN DELIBERATELY CHOOSE WHICH REASON I WILL THINK ABOUT — THE REASON FOR FEAR, OR THE REASON FOR CONFIDENCE.

"For instance, every day I worry frightfully lest my little girl may not come safely home from school. I have taken all reasonable precautions, of course, but I still worry. I think of automobiles, kidnapers, vicious strangers, fires — a thousand perils. Every day I think of these things until I'm sick with fear.

"Does this daily spasm of terror help me? To be perfectly honest, it doesn't . . . It couldn't possibly prevent an accident. And it works me into such a state that I'm snappy and miserable for the rest of the day. I've become a perfect nuisance to my family through my worrying.

"Yet I could stop it. I have the power. Instead of choosing to think about dreadful things I can think about delightful things. Instead of thinking how dangerous it is for my little girl to live in this swift, powerful age, I can think how lucky it is.

"I CAN DELIBERATELY REFUSE TO LET UGLY, WEAKENING THOUGHTS ENTER MY HEAD. JUST AS I WOULD REFUSE TO LET VICIOUS, FILTHY PEOPLE ENTER MY DOOR.

"For life is what we make it. Life is as we choose to take it."

How does a civilized person cure himself of worrying. That is how.

Timely Editorial

Slight Gains From a Program.

Not much in the form of savings is being accomplished through the shifting of government agencies under the reorganization program. The latest executive order, for example, is expected to result in economies of only about $150,000.

As reorganization of the government had been urged by one administration after another over a long period, the two combined aims were increased efficiency and a reduction of costs. How much additional efficiency may be had through the reorganization now going forward will be seen as time passes. But certainly the costs are likely to remain about what they have been, so far as reorganization is concerned.

The fact remains that we have too much government, and reorganization is not going to eliminate the excess. It will require something more drastic upon which the people who pay the bills for government will have to insist until a response is had through the representatives of these same people.—Kansas City Times.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Don't Be Bitter.

Do not let bitterness remain
To canker in your heart
Tear it out quickly, let it have
No time at all to start.

A growth that may in time give it
Set permanence Forge!
Completely hard and angry
thoughts
And never, never let

Hate dwell with you Companionship
It offers drags you low.
Naught of real worth can any heart
Depressed by hatred, know.

Summary of Week's Happenings

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

AROUND an oval mahogany table in the Pan American Union's clean-cut edifice in Washington, D. C., diplomats from north and south of the border gathered last Monday noon to celebrate their association's 50th birthday.

The speaker, Franklin D. Roosevelt:

"We of this hemisphere have no need to seek a new international order; we already have found it. This was not won by hysterical outcries, or violent movements of troops. . . . We did not invent absurd doctrines of race supremacy, or claim dictatorship through universal revolution."

The president of the mightiest of the 21 assembled good neighbors named no names. But two days earlier, condemning the German invasion of Denmark and Norway, he had asserted: "If civilization is to survive, the rights of smaller nations to independence . . . must be respected by their more powerful neighbors."

With war abroad "more horrible and destructive than ever," he now added, the western nations could keep open the way to eventual peace "only if we are prepared to meet force with force if challenge is ever made. . . . Whoever touches one of us touches all of us."

Except for an old argument over seizure of American oil properties in Mexico (whence came rumors this week of a Red-Nazi plot against the government), relations between the U. S. and its 20 neighbors to the south had never been better.

Last fall's declaration of Panama, creating the western hemisphere neutrality zone, had given the Americas a common aim—keeping European battlers at arm's length.

Economically, too, war was bringing the Americas closer together. Cut off from some European markets, they were extending trade among themselves.

. . . And Ships.

Washington's reaction to the spreading prairie fire in Europe could be gauged by this week's talk of spending more money for warships.

Some senators favored delaying a decision for the results of Nazi planes vs. British battleships off Norway. But Admiral Stark, chief of naval operations, backed a bill to boost fleet tonnage 11% and, citing "the possibility of an Allied defeat," suggested making the increase 25%.

Japan won't say how many men-of-war she's building, he noted, then guessed she was more than matching U. S. construction of capital ships. Tokyo's foreign minister, simultaneously, issued an ominous statement: "Should hostilities in Europe produce repercussions in the Netherlands East Indies, it would give rise to an undesirable situation."

Secretary Hull, on Wednesday night, warned other nations, particularly Japan, to respect the status quo of the Netherlands East Indies regardless of what happens to the Netherlands. And from officials of the British, French and American fleets in the Far East came opinions that a move by Japan to seize the Indies, in case Holland was invaded, was a "serious possibility."

At Home

Congressional Record.

The senate sent to the president a provision for reapportioning the 435 house seats on the basis of the 1940 census; sent to conference committee a bill creating nine new federal judgeships; okayed a $223,362,517 outlay for 1941 civil activities of the war department, including $15,000,000 to start a third set of Panama Canal locks.

The house sent to the senate legislation to pension nearly 5,000 more widows of Civil war veterans; reversed itself by accepting senate restoration of funds to run the National Resources Planning board through 1941; debated a bill to standardize procedure of federal administrative agencies and speed court review of their orders.

A senate committee pondered an 11% increase in authorized warship tonnage.

House committees recommended empowering the president to spend $15,000,000 to alleviate suffering in invaded countries of Europe; studied the 1941 relief bill.

Jack of All Isms.

Sixteen men on trial in New York this week used to spend much of their time figuring how they would set up a Hitler-like dictatorship here in America; but they also heard assorted lectures by one of their leaders, William Gerald Bishop. Thus testified Denis A. Healy, who kept FBI posted on the plotting.

Bishop, he said, talked about numerology, pantheism, monism, occultism, Freud and Schopenhauer, the Cabala and "various brands of communism." Asked if Bishop's lectures made sense, Healy responded: "At times, he was quite convincing."

The number of defendants had been cut from 17 to 16 after one, Claus Gunther Ernecke, was found hanging in the cellar of a New York apartment last week-end.

Greed and Gold.

Idaho legend has it that in 1883 two grizzled prospectors struck a rich vein of quartz on "Gold Hill" in the Moscow mountains. One became greedy, shot his partner, blasted the mine's entrance. Before fleeing, he left as a marker a wheelbarrow made from a whisky barrel. Last summer a vacationing doctor stumbled on the mine. And this week his mine manager reported the vein—with quartz that would run "at least" $8,000 a ton—had been struck after 22 feet of digging.

Abroad

No Easy Task.

Britons were so jubilant over developments in Scandinavia early this week that one Laborite chortled: "Herr Hitler has put a dagger at his naked bosom."

But the harder the Allies strained to push Der Fuehrer onto the dagger, the more clear it seemed that a frontal attack against his new-won bases on Norway's jagged shore might prove fatal to themselves.

Great Britain's chief strategist, Winston Churchill, quickly acknowledged that a long campaign might be in prospect.

Precious Bombers.

Each British bomber that doesn't come back means a loss of about $200,000, U. S. airmen estimate: It cost probably $150,000 to build the ship, and nearly $50,000 to train the bomber's pilot. Pursuit planes cost about $50,000 to build. These figures, the experts say, are roughly applicable to Nazi planes also, though Germany's regimented economy complicates estimates. American costs are quite a bit higher.

Another Country Heard From

Iceland a treeless island in the North Atlantic, is almost as big as Ohio but has fewer people than Trenton, N. J. It shares kings with Denmark, and has conducted its foreign relations through Copenhagen. This week, following the German invasion of Denmark, Washington and Reykjavik, Iceland's capital, prepared to establish direct diplomatic relations.

Quotes

Sen. David I. Walsh: "The greatest service we can render the nations of Europe and the world is to preserve the peace and freedom of our people."

Sen. Gerald P. Nye: "Not one single cause involved in the European war is worth the sacrifice of one American mule, much less one American youth."

People

Youthful Keynoter.

Harold E. Stassen, 6 feet 3, worked as a sleeping car conductor to pay his way through law school. At 30 he was elected governor of Minnesota. At 33, this week, he was designated to sound the keynote at the Republican national convention in Philadelphia June 24.

Paradise Renounced.

Deciding that civilization was going to pot, a group of Californians talked dreamily last winter of escaping to some faraway Tahiti. A month ago, 19 of them fled to uncivilized East Caicos Island to the Bahamas.

Soon friends in California were receiving glowing letters that told of ducks galore and lobsters a yard long. But this week sour notes were heard. Sunburned, mosquito-bitten and disillusioned, one couple returned to Miami, said seven other escapists were following them. While the man (a salesman) whooped and kissed the dock, his wife explained the island was, among other things, overrun with wild jackasses.

Builder-Upper's Lament.

"How to Help Your Husband Succeed" is the title of a Los Angeles newspaper column written by Alexandria Dean, former actress. This week, as she filed suit for separate maintenance from her husband, she told reporters: "The trouble was that I built Bruce up . . . until he began to think he didn't need me. Every woman . . . should also know when to stop!"

Census Tales.

A census taker in Canistota, S. D., helped a mother deliver a baby all by himself. . . . An enumerator in an Atlanta, Ga., jail discovered two of the prisoners were missing. . . . A feminine census taker in Chattanooga, Tenn., was interviewing a man when police broke into the room to arrest him as a criminal suspect. The raid was suspended until she had finished her questioning.

A dessert-luncheon was served after the initiation. The long table, which was lighted with two three-branched candelabra, was centered with a bouquet of red roses and blue sweetpeas. HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, April 21.

Sunday's horoscope accents the joys and happiness to be found in human contacts and avocations, probably in the realm of the social, domestic or romantic. Friendship, comradeship, conviviality and festivity mark the day, with the culmination of courtship and marriage for the eligible.

Those whose birthday it is may count on a year of pleasure, with happy days of comradeship, festivity, romantic attachments and domestic bliss. For the young or eligible wedding bells and subtle joys, as well as prosperity, are forecast.

For Monday, April 22.

Monday's astrological forecast is for difficult, delaying and adverse conditions, perhaps with affairs static and unsatisfactory when not distressing. There may be lack of support or friendliness from elders, employers or superiors, and little co-operation may be expected from group action.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of rather negligible activities with things static or depressed if not direct rebuff or defeat from superiors elders or employers. Support from groups would also be difficult or disappointing.

Little Mozarts Meet; Children Present Playlet

Harold McCuen, director of the Children's Theater, presented Ann Tracy, Jane Manz, Lynn Decker and Bettie Gibson in a playlet last evening during a meeting of the Little Mozarts at the latter's home on West Fourth street. This play was adapted from a story entitled, "When Mozart Raced Marie Antoinette."

There were 33 members and guests present for the session, which was conducted by the president, Margrethe Jorgensen. They answered roll call by naming titles of folk tunes. Musical selections on the program were given by Marjorie Eckstein and Marcella Grau at the piano, and Billy Klinger at the violin.

Elizabeth Braker read "The Childhood of Clara Shubert," after which the group played musical games and sang the club song. The hostess then served refreshments. Margery Huber will have the next meeting, May 24, at her home on Carpenter road.

Miss Bechtel Presents Papers on 2 Writers

Mrs. C. G. Critchfield, Rae avenue, entertained members of the Mansfield Poetry guild last night at her home when Mary Ellen Bechtel gave the program on Helen Welshimer and Margaret Sanger. Wilma Dudley discussed anthologies, and original poems were read by Alta Hartmann.

MANY SOCIAL EVENTS SET FOR FUTURE DATES

University Club Buffet-Bridge Comes Next Week; Two Musical Programs, Many Club Parties Scheduled.

NOW that it is spring (at least in name) social events of many kinds will bring to a conclusion the season in Mansfield within the next 30 days. Karl Horn has created another of his gay and amusing letters of announcement for the University club buffet-bridge party which will be an event of next Friday night.

The little cartoon shows a chubby and genial master of ceremonies inviting Lloyd Brown, social chairman for the club, up to a "mike" to speak his piece about the forthcoming event. The affair will be held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel at 8:45 p. m. with the games followed by supper, and the awarding of prizes.

Musical events will attract considerable local attention in the next few weeks also, as the Jonathan Glee club will present a concert next Tuesday evening at the Senior high school auditorium, and the Singers club will appear on May 6 at the same place. The glee club, which is directed by Albert Arnold, will feature Margaret B. Hall and Thelma Reed in several two piano numbers in addition to solo and chorus work.

The Singers club, directed by Edith Fletcher Jameson, will present an unusual program of classical music interpreted by dancers from the Cleveland ballet directed by Sergei Popeloff.

Most of us have had our evening shoes soaked, and the hems of our gowns muddied so many times this year when attending formal dances, that it's rather nice to hear about a dance that will be strictly informal. Delta Theta chapter of Delta Theta Tau decided the other day to entertain members and guests at Schuler's Grosvenor with a dance May 1. The affair will be held from 9:30 p. m. to 12:30 p. m. with Nels Blocher's orchestra.

The end of the season brings to clubdom an excuse for one grand party, and announcements of some of these functions are already out. The Student club, for one, will entertain with a buffet bridge party at the Susie Janis home on May 8, while members of the Mansfield Junior Sororis have announced plans for a party and installation of new officers on May 22.

Looking ahead in the notebook we find a number of other events. Beta Sigma Phi has not yet announced details, but Miss Dorothea Grimes is in charge of making arrangements for the annual Founders' day party which will be held April 30. Annual meetings will be held early next month by Jared Mansfield Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, the American Association of University Women and the Mansfield Business and Professional Women.

While May 12, Mothers' day, has been chosen by practically every sorority in town for either a breakfast or tea honoring mothers of the members. Details of these affairs are not yet complete, but both Delta Theta and Zeta Rho chapters of Delta Theta Tau will join to entertain with a breakfast at the Mansfield-Leland hotel that morning.

Informal Initiation Held By Tri-Kappa Girls

Informal initiation of pledges to Kappa Kappa Kappa was held Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Lavora Longnecker, 206½ West Park boulevard, with Miss Virginia Gerke assisting. The formal guest dinner party which had been planned for May 10 was postponed indefinitely and arrangements were discussed for holding formal initiation at the Park Avenue Baptist church.

A round table discussion followed the business meeting. Luncheon was served at a table decorated with Mexican appointments. The next meeting will be held May 7.

Mrs. Grace Komrosky and Mrs. Rose Komrosky, Valley City, N. D., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Traxler, Bianche street.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"My elder sister was my idol from my childhood," she said. "In my eyes she could do no wrong. And my reverence for her was increased by the fact that to her, as the first-born child, had been revealed the family secret which could only come to me were she to die without issue.

"The first tragedy of my life was the death of my parents," Miss Carman went on. "But that sorrow was dwarfed when I realized that my sister's marriage to a man I detested and distrusted had separated her from me as fully as Death itself could have done.

"I never have seen such infatuation as was hers for the man she married. Even the discovery that he had deceived her about his previous marriage and his child made no difference to her. But gradually she began to realize his utter worthlessness, and in her last days she came to me for refuge from his cruelty, and died, literally, in my arms.

From Sister to Sister.

"It was fro mher lips, in that illness, that I received the greatest shock of my life," she said after a pause heavily freighted with sadness. "When she knew that she could not get well, she told me the secret of the house which my father had confided to her, and gave me these maps and files of descriptions and history of those early times. Then she confessed to me that before her husband began to show the cloven hoof she had told him the secret of the house and showed him the maps and files. I asked her if he had copied them, and she said she did not think so. But this thing you have told me proves conclusively that he must have copied them, must have given those copies to his son, and that son in turn gave them to the present John Leslie, the third of his name."

"That is undoubtedly the solution of the problem," I said, and Lillian nodded an assent.

"It shows how utterly futile were those old precautions," Miss Carman said sadly. "I have guarded these things all these years; have been ready to destroy them at my death. And here an alien, with no drop of my blood in his veins, not only has the secret, but is using it for the basest and most treacherous of objects."

With movements surprisingly quick for her age and infirmity, she spread out the maps and opened a small book whose pages were filled with figures and letters.

"This is the key to the maps," she said. "Let me explain it to you," and then you will be able to locate all these places as well as I can. The distances and directions are worked out with surprising accuracy."

Lillian and I spent the next quarter of an hour in intensive study of the key, and at last professed our ability to work out the calculations of the maps.

"And now," I said as we finished, "I think we would better avail ourselves of your kind permission to copy these maps and papers."

Miss Carman rose from her seat with an air of decision.

"I have changed my mind," she said with decision. "There is no need for you to copy them. I am going to give you all these papers."

OF HEARTS AND SONG + + +

CHAPTER XXI.

Before she had time to think of anything more the red light again flashed on. Perplexed and a trifle worried, Elaine turned to the accompanist.

"They want you to do it again," the girl explained kindly. She laughed at Elaine's woebegone countenance. "Good grief, don't worry about that, they're liable to have you sing it fifty times!"

Elaine again stepped up to the microphone and again she sang, and again the red light flashed on. But after she had sung a third time they apparently had decided they had heard enough. She glanced curiously at the accompanist. She probably had listened to thousands of voices; she would be likely to know if she had succeeded or not.

The girl slowly shook her head, sensing Elaine's unasked question. "I don't know," she said frankly. "Your voice is very good, but sometimes even a good voice sounds very amateurish at the other end of the microphone."

The information startled Elaine but before she could ask the girl the reason for this the door burst open and Betty dashed into the room, face wreathed with smiles.

"You were terrific!" she proclaimed, dancing wildly about the room. "You were—were . . ." for once Betty was at a loss for a word, but Clara and Mr. Weinberg who had followed her into the room said all that Elaine wanted to hear.

"You've got a good voice," Mr. Weinberg said, smiling. "Lots of personality and romance in it. Just what we wanted."

"We'll draw up a contract tomorrow," Mr. Blanchard said, coming over towards her, eyes twinkling. "Who knows, this may be the humble beginning of a great star."

"Humble my eye!" Clara declared, ever loyal to the store. "It isn't every girl who has the honor of representing the greatest store in the world!"

She was dreaming. Yes, that was it. Surely she couldn't be the same girl who had awakened so tired, so depressed that same morning. She couldn't be the same girl who had cried her heart out the night before. All this was too good to be true. She must pinch herself to make sure she wasn't dreaming. She did pinch herself, but gingerly and the little hurt was all the proof she needed. She wasn't dreaming! All this was true. Wonderfully, gloriously, ecstatically true!

"We've got to celebrate," Betty exclaimed with an impish grin. "Right, Clara?"

Clara nodded her head. "Of course. You don't think we could let such a historic occasion pass without some sort of fuss, do you?"

Mr. Blanchard smiled good-naturedly as he put on his hat. "While you girls make up your mind about that, Mr. Weinberg and I will return to the store. Some one has to earn the money to pay for all these things."

Elaine wrung his hand gratefully before he left, looking straight into his twinkling eyes. But before she could even begin to express her thanks he cut her short with a brisk gesture and walked swiftly from the room. She wondered why it was that people always refused to accept her thanks and then, turning to Betty and Clara, remembered their talk about a celebration. Recalling the tragic ending of their last one, she felt alarm steal through her.

Yes, once before the three of them had gone out on a celebration; they had sneaked out the window of their room, three happy, adventuresome young girls eager for fun and frolic, and found instead disaster and disgrace. Elaine wondered about the strangeness of all that. It seemed almost fantastic that this seemingly harmless escapade should have lead to all this. Instead of a tropical honeymoon, here she was in New York, single, on the way to fame and fortune, when all that she had asked of life was contentment and love.

"If you're thinking that I'm suggesting another drinking party, you're wrong," Betty told her, serious for once in her gay life. "I've had quite enough of those, thank you. I'm still paying for our last party. Now, what should we do?" She placed her forefinger on her forehead and bowed her head as though lost in deep thought.

And Elaine, watching her, found herself thinking that Betty had really paid more for their good time than any of them. Poetic justice, in a way, for it had been she who was so determined to celebrate. But such a price to pay! A fractured skull, her name dragged across the headlines of every newspaper, her trip to Paris cancelled by an irate father, all this for one good time.

"We could have luncheon, go to the movies, and have dinner somewhere," Clara suggested hopefully as they walked out of the building. She paused in the middle of the sunlit street. "Come on, what do you say? It's too hot to dawdle all day making up our minds."

Clara's program was finally decided upon, although Betty was frowning heavily as they climbed into the taxi. Anything so ordinary as eating and attending a motion picture show had never appealed to her and it was only after much argument that she had consented to come with them. Elaine glanced at them both with happy eyes. It was good to have them near her again, yes, good, even though Betty and Clara were still squabbling as merrily as ever. But then, she decided with a smile, if they weren't always arguing they just wouldn't be Betty and Clara.

The hours passed swiftly for the three happy girls. Although none of them enjoyed the motion picture it was much better to loll in the seats of an air-cooled theater than to be out on the hot streets, and they decided to sit through the show for a second time.

Elaine glanced at her watch when out on the street and made the startling discovery that it was after six. Remembering that Eric had been due back at the house at five, she turned to the girls and called off the dinner date.

"And such news I'll have to tell him!" she exclaimed happily. "It—it seems so good to be true. No more waiting on tables, no more getting up at seven o'clock. Why, I'll be a lady of leisure."

Betty halted in the middle of the street and sniffed indignantly. "I refuse to walk a step further with such a high-hat. Lady of leisure indeed. You should be ashamed of yourself, Elaine Warburton!"

With Betty's words ringing in her ears, Elaine turned and left them and it was not until she was in the subway that she had not thanked Clara for her help. She should be ashamed of herself. But somehow, she wasn't. She was too happy to feel anything but joy. And tomorrow would be time enough to tell Clara just how much she appreciated her help. But tonight—tonight she could tell Eric!

* * *

She was quivering with excitement as she bolted up the steps to the house fifteen minutes later. How happy Eric would be when he learned that they did not have to wait to be married! She wrenched open the door and burst into the apartment—and her exultant words died in her throat, for Eric, head thrown back over the edge of the couch was holding a handkerchief to his face. And the handkerchief was stained with blood.

She rushed anxiously across the room and sank to her knees beside the couch. She placed a gentle hand on his arm. "Eric, what on earth has happened?"

He withdrew the handkerchief from his face to reveal a bleeding nose. With an angry cry he jumped to his feet and walked towards the door. "You can ask your boy-friend about that."

Consternation written all over her face Elaine rose to her feet and gripped his arm just as he was about to go out through the door. "Ask who what, Eric?" she questioned, annoyed at his sullen air.

Wordless, he brushed her arm aside and walked swiftly through the door, slamming it shut behind him.

"It isn't anything serious," Jane told her, bustling in from the kitchen. "He and Melvyn just had a fight and Eric led with his face instead of his fist."

Elaine sagged limply against the door, wondering if ever again in her life she would know a day equal to this. Melvyn's kiss, the radio audition, and now—now a fight.

"I'm sorry about it, Elaine," Jane apologized. "But it wasn't Melvyn's fault. Eric just burst into the room and began to pick an argument with him, and before—Elaine, where are you going?"

Elaine did not answer. Running from the room she dashed up the steps. She had just remembered Eric's remark about her "boy-friend."

Friendly House Provides Training for Children

Although there are many adults who look to the Friendly House settlement for training and social recreations, it is primarily an institution for children, as these pictures show. Picture No. 1—A group of small colored boys and girls in the kindergarten. No. 2—Victoria Lulu, left, and Agnes Yonkovski, in a girl's handcraft class, learn to make their own hats. No. 3—These children have a lot of fun in the kindergarten sand pile. No. 4—This little colored fellow has a place to play under trained supervision at the settlement. Settlement, One of Community Fund Agencies, Started In '98

(Editor's Note: This is the fourth of a series of articles and pictures dealing with the nine agencies that make up the Mansfield Community Fund. A campaign to raise $57,000 for the support of these agencies for the ensuing year will open April 29.)

The Friendly House settlement has one thing in common with Topsy—it grew and grew, but unlike that famous character, it has become increasingly important in its community.

The first city "mission" really got under way back in 1898 in a little building on North Main street, just south of the Bissman Grocery company. The Christian Endeavor Union was a sponsor of it and they interested the late Susan Sturges in it. It grew so rapidly that the mission had to be moved to new quarters down on North Main, below its present location.

Miss Sturges financed it the first few years by giving the mission the rental off her apartment house (now the Gardner apartments) on Park avenue west. It remained on North Main until 1913, the year of the big flood, when it was forced again to move. Miss Sturges then donated the Park avenue property, which was sold and the money used to purchase the present Friendly House building at 268 North Main. The gymnasium, handicraft department and kindergarden rooms were added before 1915.

In 1920 the Community Fund was organized, and the Friendly House, which had been incorporated in 1915, came under it. Today the greatly expanded program is financed by the allocation from the Community Fund and from private contributions by civic groups and friends.

The Friendly House settlement is conducted to provide underprivileged boys and girls with a place in which to work and play, as well as study, in a wholesome atmosphere with clean-minded associates, and under the supervision of competent instructors.

The Friendly House operates on the assumption that today's children, whether American or foreign parentage are tomorrow's citizens, and it seeks to prepare them for the responsibility of citizenship.

In order to accomplish its purpose, it has organized clubs of all ages from kindergarden to adults, and provides study, recreation and social contacts for all of the various nationalities in Mansfield.

It has far outgrown its present building and now uses a house in the rear of the settlement house and the basement of the Phoenix hotel is used for boys recreation.

The activities are many and varied. Among them are handicraft classes, gym classes, foreign parties, holiday entertainments, social dancing, basket ball and baseball leagues, a library, free movies, Travelers Aid, sewing, knitting, millinery classes, mothers clubs, sewing groups for women and a free kindergarden.

During 1919, a total of 1,274 members participated in these activities, with an additional 444 non-members. The work is supervised by a staff of seven full-time workers and 132 volunteer workers.

The total operating expenses last year were $8,621, of which the Community Fund contributed $7,308, with an additional $325 for a new fire escape and electrical wiring. This year the settlement will receive $7,300.

The Friendly House is governed by a board of managers and an advisory board. Russell Gimbel has been executive director of the settlement for the past eight years.

GET EXEMPTION

War Vets Get Consideration In Citizenship Requests.

World war veterans who have never become citizens of the United States will be afforded special exemptions if they file for naturalization papers before May 25, Norman P. Henry, deputy county clerk in charge of naturalization, said today.

War veterans who have been honorably discharged may obtain citizenship without filing certificate of arrival in the United States, known as the "first papers," and without filing a declaration of intention to seek citizenship, eliminating much of the procedure in applying for citizenship, Henry said.

The period for exemption was extended recently by congress as a service to foreign-born residents who served with the United States army during the war.

Cleveland East Tech Files Entry In Mansfield Relays

CLEVELAND EAST TECH'S defending state championship track team looms today as the outstanding favorite to take top honors in the 14th annual Mansfield Relays.

East Tech, which filed its entry today, possesses one of the greatest track squads in the school's history and has been making an impressive record in indoor meets at Cleveland this spring.

With the filing of four additional entries today, the list totals 11, and Coach Harry Mehock, director of the classic, expects at least 30 more by Monday. The Relays will be held at Stadium field next Saturday.

Couple of Four-Alarm Fires Rage In Majors, Writer Says

(By Associated Press)

A couple of four alarm fires are raging in the major leagues today and nobody is going to have any peace of mind until they're out.

* * *

The Brooklyn Dodgers and Cleveland Indians, who finished third in their respective leagues last season, have started the current campaign with two consecutive shutouts.

* * *

On the heels of Bobby Feller's epochal no-hitter in the Indians opener, Johnny Allen came along yesterday with a three-hit 4-0 trimming for the Detroit Tigers.

This exhibition warmed 26,529 Cleveland fans who braved 40-degree temperature to welcome the tribe back to the tepee.

The Dodgers vented years of pent-up fury on the New York Giants yesterday with a 12-0 thrashing that Bill Terry and his outfield won't be permitted to forget soon.

Hugh Casey gave nine hits, but had the full co-operation of Brooklyn's great infield to keep any of them from meaning anything. On the other hand the Dodgers got 12 hits and made every hit a run—without a blow bigger than a double.

An important angle to Brooklyn's success is that the two shutouts have been accomplished without yet resorting to the club's leading pitcher of last year, Luke Hamlin, a 20-game winner.

The only other team still undefeated in the majors is Cincinnati, which was one of a half dozen teams rained out yesterday.

The Boston Red Sox were cooled off by the Philadelphia Athletics in the afternoon, 3-1, after taking a morning contest 7-6 to run their string to three straight.

Jimmy Foxx's second home run in as many days helped decide the morning game. A similar blow by Bob Johnson came with one on in the first inning of the afternoon affair gave the A's all the runs they needed on John Babich's careful, five-hit pitching.

The world champion Yankees got their home season safely underway with a 5-3 nod over the Washington Senators, scoring four runs in the first inning around a two-run homer by Joe Gordon.

* * *

The Chicago Cubs broke into the winner's circle with a 5-0 shutout of the St. Louis Cardinals by Lefty Larry French, who permitted only six safeties.

Blues Try for 2nd Straight

Kansas City Determined to Win League Pennant.

(By Associated Press)

The Kansas City Blues are on the trail of their second straight American Association pennant without the fine pitching of Marvin Breuer or the powerful slugging of Vince DiMaggio.

Both graduated to the big leagues last fall, but Manager Billy Meyer has another effective pair which may step in and fill the shoes of the departed twosome.

Ernie Bonham and Russell Derry gave indications yesterday that they are ready to pace the Blues' march to a second flag. Bonham, only 23 years old but playing his third season with the Blues, gave Toledo only one hit as Kansas City evened the series at a game apiece, winning 4-0.

Mark Christman's eight inning single ruined Bonham's bid for a no-hitter, but a double play rubbed him out. Bonham walked one batter, facing only 28 men over the route.

Derry is fresh from the Piedmont league where he knocked 40 homers last season, drove in 119 runs, scored 17 and was credited with 323 total bases.

He clinched yesterday's victory with a two-run homer in the fourth, scoring Phil Rizzuto ahead of him. He also got a single.

* * *

None of the other teams played yesterday because of cold and rainy weather.

Streaks Meet Sandusky Team

Snow, Rain Fails to Halt Today's Meet.

Despite a steady down-pour of rain and occasional snowfall, the Mansfield Red Streaks tangled with their arch foe, the Sandusky Blue Streaks, this afternoon at Stadium field.

Athletic events throughout the nation were being cancelled today because of stormy weather, but the two spunky high school track squads went to work right on schedule.

Although hopes for the Red Streaks did not run high among local track circles, Coach Harry Mehock's team was determined to give the Sandusky crew a good battle. Mansfield lost to Newark two weeks ago, their first defeat at the hands of Newark since the two schools opened competition on the cinder path.

Hudlin To Hurl Today

Veteran Will Be Held Over Until Monday If Rains Halt Game.

BULLETIN

CLEVELAND — (AP) — An all-night rain caused postponement of today's second Detroit-Cleveland game giving Willis Hudlin, dean of the Indians' pitching corps, two days additional rest.

CLEVELAND —(AP)—The high-spirited Indians handed the torch to Willis Hudlin today, giving the dean of the hurling corps the difficult task of emulating the shutout performances of Bob (No-Hit) Feller and Johnny Allen.

Manager Oscar Vitt said, however, that in the event of continued rains halted the game that Hudlin would be held over until Monday, with Feller taking his second turn in the box against Detroit tomorrow. Schoolboy Rowe was the Tiger mound nominee.

Allen limited the Bengals to three scattered hits yesterday as the Indians took the home opener 4 to 0, before 26,529 chilled fans. The temperature was 38 degrees.

Jeff Heath plated three of the runs with a towering home run into the right field stands in the sixth inning.

The victory inning started off with a sharp single by Lou Boudreau. Roy Weatherly sacrificed and Ben Chapman scored the Tribal shortstop with a whistling double down the third base line. Hal Trosky worked Henry Pippen for a pass, setting the stage for Heath's circuit smash.

Only three Detroit batters reached second base during the game as Allen made a spectacular start on his comeback. All the blows off the big right hander were singles and he issued only two bases on balls.

One of the hits was made by Bruce Campbell, the outfielder the Indians swapped to Detroit for Gardener Beau Bell.

Weatherly contributed the defensive highlight of the game as he made an amazing diving catch of Pinky Higgins' liner for the final out of the contest.

CITY BUYS OWN DUMP

IONIA, Mich —(AP)—The city of Ionia recently bought its own city dump. The property was discovered to be owned by two citizens. LEADING STOCKS MANAGE TO TACK ON SMALL GAINS

Report Shows Railroads Suffer Decline In Net Operating Income.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK - Leading stocks managed to tack on small fractional gains in today's early market trading.

Boardrooms scanned the survey of the federal reserve board which disclosed department store sales throughout the nation in the week ended April 13, ran 5 per cent ahead of the corresponding period last year.

Those watching the rails noted that the first four roads to report for March suffered a decline in net operating income of 8.2 per cent from the like month a year ago despite a 3.2 per cent increase in gross revenues. The drop was blamed partly on heavier expenses involved in repair of equipment and larger employment.

Engaging Musical Score.

Musical treatment in Walt Disney's second full length feature production "Pinocchio" in technicolor which is showing at the Ohio theater is on a scale as elaborate as that which marked "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." Six songs are featured, each furthering the plot of the story. The picture opens on little Jiminy Cricket singing a melodious ballad, "When You Wish Upon a Star." The story concerns a kindly old wood carver who creates an engaging puppet, which he names Pinocchio. As the puppet dances Geppetto sings "Little Woodenhead" and "Turn on the Old Music Box."

Life of Scientist.

Contrary to what might be expected from the title and the presence of Robinson at the head of the cast, the new film 'Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet" which is showing at the Madison theater, is not a gangster picture It is entertaining and dramatic picturization of the life and work in the medical field of Dr Paul Ehrlich, winner of the Nobel prize for his scientific discoveries. The co-feature is Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in "Saps at Sea." These comedians are presented as a pair of testers in a horn factory.

Test-Flying and Comedy.

One of the most outstanding motion picture productions of the past season will be featured at the Majestic theater beginning Sunday It is 'Sky Giant" starring Richard Dix, Chester Morris and Joan Fontaine, dealing with the lives and loves of today's airmen in a gripping story of test flying and the dangerous work of skyway exploration The co-feature is Harriet Hilliard Victor Moore, Gene Raymond, Joe Penner, Helen Broderick and Parkyakarkus in "Life of the Party."

Jane Withers in "Pack Up Your Troubles" is the second feature She is co-starred with the Ritz brothers

Drama and Mystery.
